

Comment from Mitch Coch

The only acceptable connected communications in cars is one that can be easily turned off or removed by the cars owner. Why is this even being discussed? For more regulations?