

Comment from Alan Travaglianti

I am against any automotive communication from car to car unless it is paid for by the providers who will profit from the use of this system. Also, as a freedom lover, I want to be able to easily disconnect my vehicle from said car to car communication system. Finally, my new 2109 Chevrolet already has enough distractions going on with the need to use the screen to do many of the items my previous cars did with simple pushbuttons and dials. This new system should not be anything I need to do further to distract from my driving.
