

Comment from j. roberts

I am against the communications between automobiles. It is an invasion of my own privacy. And a security matter for me and my automobile, regardless of the driver.

When we have all these self driving autos.. ..What keeps terrorist from loading a dozen autos with bombs and having them heading into a large city communicating with each other or even worse, innocent drivers of other autos and blowing them up.

All self driving autos should have steering wheels and brakes setup like normal autos, so they can be controlled in case of a malfunction.

When you are trying to read the lines on the highways and they are covered by mud, snow or road construction...self driving cars are just accidents waiting to happen!