

Comment from Ronald Wysocki

The exceptional cost to implement V2X technology and its necessary infrastructure should be borne by the providers who will profit from the system, NOT the car owners or taxpayers.

Connected communications in cars must be easily shut off or removable by car owners.

There are too many "technology advances" that cause distracted driving such as smart phones. Any technology must not interfere with driving