

Comment from Anne Mills

I do not want to have or pay for connected vehicles. I do not want to pay for required infrastructure, with money or health.

The only acceptable radio in cars are the ones that can be easily turned off or removed. Anything for money, right? Doesn't matter who it hurts, right? Until your family member is the one that suffers, all is well.

I love my computer. I don't want one in my car. I don't want my car telling me when to drive where or how. I don't want my vehicle locking the doors for me or steering or braking or using lights.

If someone is not capable of passing a driving test and driving safely ...if someone is not capable of driving due to drinking or drugs, they do not belong behind a wheel. This is what will happen. This is what has already happened with autonomous vehicles. They depend on the vehicle while they talk on the phone or sleep off a drunk.

Technology is not better than most human drivers. Hasn't your computer crashed? Might be interesting on a twisty mountainous cliffside road, though.