

Comment from Michael McGinnis

There is absolutely no need or reason for my car to communicate with any other vehicle. Any motor vehicle operator must be attentive to surroundings at all times. Even the current level of technology is turning people into idiots: I cannot fathom having my car tell me to stay in my lane, or to have it stop for me because I'm too stupid to not hit the car in front of me.